Music has the ability to alter our emotions, offer an escape from reality and makes the listening experience emerging and dynamic. Mood-motivated and theme-based listening is at odds with music traditionally organised by genre, artist or album. 'Oh, so you love making playlists? one for every mood?' showcases a small selection of these mood and thematic playlists created by Spotify and its users.

The publication was created for the Publishing Platforms module, tutored by Lozana Rossenova, at the Department of Typography & Graphic Communication in the University of Reading.

The typefaces used within the publication are DM Sans and Poppins, designed by Colophon Foundry, Jonny Pinhorn and the Indian Type Foundry. Both fonts are licensed under the Open Font License, and can be downloaded via GoogleFonts.

The Spotify Codes, which are QR-like "scannable" tags, were sourced directly from the Spotify app. The images used for the playlist covers in this publication are sourced from Unsplash and Pexels, online royalty free and stock photo websites. The images were selected by searching a keyword within the playlist name, and then ~~endlessly~~ scrolling through the search until the perfect playlist cover is found. If you know, you know...

To access these playlists and listen to the songs: open the Spotify app on your phone > press 'Search' in the navigation bar > tap the camera icon > point your camera at the Spotify Code over a code within the book. Browse. Discover. Listen. And most importantly, enjoy!
